should start to come through.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. So, anything that we might want to do, for example, with regard to cigarette advertising, assuming it's otherwise constitutional, we could continue to do.

SENATOR JENSEN: Well, part of the master settlement, there are statements regarding advertising and other issues, and I'd be glad to share those with you as to what those are.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Do they prohibit us from doing certain types of restrictions on advertising?

SENATOR JENSEN: Us or the tobacco...

SENATOR BEUTLER: The state of...the state of Nebraska.

SENATOR JENSEN: The state of Nebraska from advertising?

SENATOR BEUTLER: Do they prohibit the state of Nebraska from prohibiting any type of cigarette advertising?

SENATOR JENSEN: No, no.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay.

SENATOR JENSEN: And in the settlement, there is some prohibition of the type of advertising that the tobacco companies can do.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. Does the settlement agreement prohibit the federal government from doing anything?

SENATOR JENSEN: No.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Okay. So, the reason that the federal government should be excluded from all of this is because they were not a part of the settlement and didn't do any of the work, is that the idea?

SENATOR JENSEN: Well, yes. I mean, this was negotiated by the states, and they bore the expense of the negotiations. The
